August 2013

The new fall semester has begun and as the Librarian Liaison to your department, I welcome the opportunity to work closely with you and your students to help create an environment that supports research and learning.

We can provide help at any stage of your research project, from the beginning conducting a literature review, to selecting a journal for publication - we can help you every step of the way. Do your students need help locating peer-reviewed articles or statistics from authoritative sites? Feel free to contact me and request a library instruction session and I would be more than happy to teach them how to develop effective research skills sure to save them time and lower their aggravation.

The best method of reaching me is to send an email to gisela@gwu.edu to make an appointment.

Tip of the Month How to create a link to an article in Blackboard - Easy!

Linking to Electronic Resources:
Creating Durable Links

Do you need help creating a direct link to a specific article, eBook or e-text chapter within your course in Blackboard? The guide, Linking to Electronic Resources: Creating Durable Links will provide you with easy steps on how to link any library resource into your Blackboard course. Look over the E-Text/Database tab to view the list of databases from AccessMedicine, CINAHL to SPORTDiscus. Contact me if you need help and I can walk you through the process.
