Building a Unique Collection through Collaboration: International Employee Assistance Archive

Patricia Hinegardner, MLS
Associate Director for Resource Development and Access

Na Lin, MLS

Head of Resource Development and Sharing
(UMB Digital Archive Manager)

Health Sciences and Human Services Library (HSHSL)
University of Maryland, Baltimore (UMB)

Building the Collection

Launched in 2013

Collaborators:

      University of Maryland School of Social Work (SSW)

      University of Maryland Health Sciences and Human Services
      Library (HSHSL)

Purpose: Provide a global repository for the field of Employee Assistance Programs (EAP) to

- Be an open access resource for EA and interdisciplinary professionals as well as the general public
- Preserve significant historical documents
- Provide tools to guide employees through crises

Content

Scope
Materials with a significant focus on historical or current EAP topics

Formats
- Original Manuscripts
- Publications – articles, book chapters, journals
- Oral histories
- Dissertations
- Presentations
- Government documents
- Photographs
- Multi-media materials

Collaborator Responsibilities - HSHSL

- Gatekeep licensing, copyright/permissions
- Curate content for discoverability and accessibility
- Provide training and consultations for content submitters
- Provide sustainable technology and disk space
- Provide usage statistics

Collaborator Responsibilities - SSW

- Outreach and acquire content

- Marketing and promotion

- Vet submitters

- Screen content to ensure its significance and relevance

- Digitize materials

- Submit to Archive

International Employee Assistance Archive a collection in the UMB Digital Archive

Employee Assistance Archive School of Social Work

BROWSE BY

| Publication Date | Authors | Titles | Subjects |

Search within this collection:

[   ] [Go]

The University of Maryland School of Social Work – the only social work program with a dedicated Employee Assistance (EA) curriculum as part of the larger MSW program – hosts the Employee Assistance Digital Archive.

The Employee Assistance Digital Archive is a free, publicly accessible site where EA professionals can post original works, historical documents or other related papers. The intent of the Archive is to preserve important historical documents in the EA field as well as to provide a national depository for all significant articles in the field.

Please visit our Employee Assistance Digital Archive Homepage to learn about how you can submit and use the Archive.

Submit a new item to this collection

Recent Submissions

Increasing the Human Capital Impact and Financial ROI of Employee Assistance Programs

Beyer, Cal; Dyme, Bernard S. (The Construction Users Roundtable (CURT), by Matrix Group Publishing Inc., 2021)
Shortly after the onset of the pandemic in 2020, Cal Beyer and Bernie Dyme collaborated on an article titled "Why Employee Assistance Programs Are Valuable During and After COVID-19."1 Almost a year and a half later, the advice offered remains relevant. Mental health and wellbeing continue to be top of mind. Yet, Employee Assistance

Leadership in Times of Crisis: Critical Incident Response After Tragedy
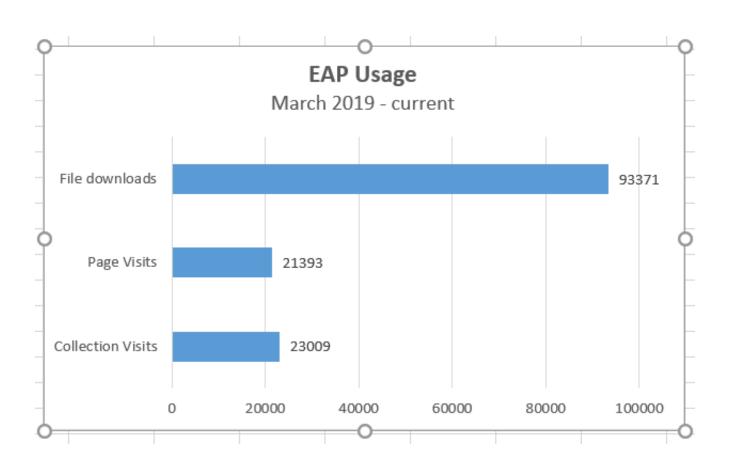

International Employee Assistance Digital Archive Knowledge Hub

Usage Statistics

Thank you!

Na Lin, MLS

nlin@hshsl.umaryland.edu

Patricia Hinegardner, MLS

phinegar@hshsl.umaryland.edu

International Employee Assistance Archive

Database: https//archive.hshsl.umaryland.edu/handle/10713/2345

Knowledge Hub: https://www.eaarchive.org